

Rick A. Nishimura M.D., F.A.C.C., F.A.C.P.
Judd and Mary Morris Leighton
Professor of CV Diseases
Professor of Medicine
Mayo Clinic College of Medicine

---

Dr. Nishimura is the Judd and Mary Morris Leighton Professor of Cardiovascular Diseases and Professor of Medicine at the Mayo Clinic College of Medicine. He currently has an active clinical practice in the Department of Cardiovascular Medicine with a particular interest in hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, valvular heart disease and pericardial disease. Dr. Nishimura's clinical research areas have involved the field of cardiovascular hemodynamics. He is the Director of the Knowledge Management Program at for the Mayo Foundation, under the Office of Information Knowledge Management. He is a Master of the American College of Cardiology and Master of the American College of Physicians. He currently serves as Chair of the ACC/AHA Valvular Heart Disease Guideline Committee and is the chair of the ACC Digital Strategy Committee. He has received the ACC Presidential Citation Award, the ACC Master Teacher Award, the American Heart Association Laennec Clinician/Educator Award, as well as the Mayo Clinic Distinguished Educator Award and the Mayo Clinic Distinguished Clinician Award. He directs the Mayo Clinic Cardiovascular Board Review Course and has been involved in national educational activities at the ACC for the past 30 years.